A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

LET’S CONNECT & EDUCATE

by Richard Pagliara, D.O., President, Collier County Medical Society

Dr. Pagliara accepted the presidential gavel on Saturday, May 4th. The following is an excerpt from his acceptance speech.

I know a lot of you don’t know me so I thought this would be a good time to introduce myself. I’m an only child of Donna and Richard, Sr and originally from Guilderland, NY, a small town outside of Albany. My interest in medicine began at age 15 when my father became critically ill. The orchestration of his intensive care intrigued me, and its conductors even more. I knew I wanted to be just like those doctors that saved my Dad. I wanted to be like many of you. Two years later, I attended Quinnipiac University on a golf scholarship. After graduation, I first started work as an ICU nursing assistant, and soon after as a surgical technician while applying to medical school. I moved to Chicago to study medical physics where I learned to appreciate the field of radiology. I was accepted to the New York College of Osteopathic Medicine and it was there, in the front row of the auditorium, where I met my future brother-in-law who introduced me to his sister.

After graduation, I stayed in Long Island for my internship within the North Shore Health System. Cathy and I then traveled to Hartford for a radiology residency at Hartford Hospital, where we got married and had our daughter Olivia. We then moved back to Long Island for my fellowship at SUNY Stony Brook. In June of 2008, when our son Nicholas was 6 weeks old, we moved to Naples and I began my career at Radiology Regional Center.

Being a truly independent physician with no connection or allegiance to either hospital system, I knew I was at a disadvantage meeting fellow physicians and gaining possible referrals. I thought I could mitigate this by asking to join the CCMS board in May of 2010. But what resulted, however, has been so much more.

I am truly honored to represent and serve the physicians of the Collier County Medical Society as your 55th President. I am also pleased to be the first Osteopathic Physician to hold this position.

MY GOALS

First, having a viable health information exchange – or HIE – will provide us with the ability to securely exchange patient information between health care providers and institutions. Your society has been investigating HIE and currently both NCH and PRMC are working on solutions that will potentially extend into our community. These efficiencies are significant…and too many to list here at this time. I vow that our medical society resources will be available to both hospital systems to assist with implementation, marketing, and governance, when needed. True HIE would be a paradigm shift in the way we all practice medicine and is the next grand leap to modernize our nation’s health care system.

Second, many of you have voiced the need for the Society to provide more Continuing Medical Education opportunities. Your Board is listening and will add more CME accredited meetings and conferences this upcoming year. My goal is to attract some of the many, highly skilled and accomplished physicians right here in Southwest Florida to help with this objective. This could be a wonderful opportunity for many of you to showcase your knowledge, expertise and practice to our membership.

Third, your Board will be working very closely with Dr. Rivera to help him strengthen the CCMS Foundation. I, too, share his belief that this entity will serve our community well and I will help promote and support fundraising efforts. In fact, Cathy and I would like to start right now. [Dr. Pagliara handed a check made out to the Foundation to Dr. Rivera.]

And lastly, after initial inquiry from Hodges University, I believe it’s in our best interest to partner with our local academic institution. Hodges’ School of Allied Health offers several medically related degree programs poised for significant growth. With your help, the medical society can assist these students in locating preceptorships; a critical step in educating our future local healthcare workforce.

John Quincy Adams once said, “If your actions inspire others to dream more, learn more, do more and become more, you are a leader.”

We physicians, whether we like it or not, are LEADERS. We are leaders in our profession; we are leaders to our patients; we are leaders in our community. The title of “physician” is an influential title and sometimes we lose sight of its significance and our responsibilities outside of patient care.

We are busy people…struggling to balance work, life and family. But I encourage all of you, when you feel the time is right, to become involved in your community, whether through your child’s school, your church, your hospital, your government, or your medical society.

Physicians can have significant influence on health and public policy, but we must stay involved in the process to have true effect. There are plenty of others willing to shape policy for us; in many cases not with our or our patients’ best interest. Now more than ever, we physicians must use our physical and monetary presence, so our government can hear us loud and clear. Our noble profession, our livelihood has been and continues to be challenged. We cannot, we must not remain idle.
Saying Goodbye

Guests of the Annual Meeting paid tribute to retiring Executive Director Margaret Eadington with a rose reception line as newly inducted President Dr. Richard Pagliara read a poignant farewell speech in her honor. In attendance was Dr. Diedra Woods, President of CCMS in 2000, who remarked on Margaret’s remarkable first impression and interview during their search 13 years ago. Eadington is emigrating back to her homeland – England – at the end of May, but plans to visit Florida friends during the winter months.

The science of genetics has been rocked by the news that the genetic code in our chromosomes is not the entirety of our genetic material. The additional genetic material (previously thought to be “trash”) is DNA in the nuclei of cells separate from the chromosomes. It is called nucleic Dark Matter. Neuroscientists now understood that this material contains, among other things, switches that turn on and off many of the elements (SNP’s) of genetic code in an individual’s chromosomes. Thus it was insufficient to know which “good” genes or pathological genes are in a patient’s chromosome array. We must also learn what the contribution of that person’s genetic dark matter is to predict the phenotypic expression of his/her chromosome array! The implications are enormous. It suggests that many of the genetic studies done previously that ignored the contribution from the individual’s dark matter are incomplete and of limited value. This could explain the failure of many attempts to replicate genetic studies for many psychiatric conditions.

Advances in neuroscience in the last ten years have focused on the role of cells in the Hippocampus and Hippocampal Neuroplasticity. In contrast to our understanding prior to 2003, we now know that cells in the Hippocampus must replicate (neuroplasticity) at a significant rate to maintain our emotional health. Stress can reduce this replication rate and lead to depression and anxiety. It appears that all of our treatments, medical as well as psychological, can lead to improvements in a patient’s depression and anxiety by increasing the replication rate of the cells in the Hippocampus! Medications (Prozac et al), ECT, Cognitive/Behavioral Therapy all appear to work by increasing the rate of replication of these cells!

Some practical treatment approaches to depression and anxiety are listed below. The only medication approaches that are “curative” and wholesome for depression and anxiety are antidepressants and Buspirone (Buspar).

STEP 1: Be sure the patient is not Bipolar. History (including contributions for a significant other) is the best indicator. Giving an antidepressant to a Bipolar can worsen the course of the disease significantly!

STEP 2: Choose an agent: Has anything helped in the past. Premature discontinuation of an effective agent is the single biggest problem in keeping our patients well. If something worked before; try it again.

STEP 3: Has something helped a first-degree relative? If so, try it next.

STEP 4: Was the titration appropriate? [See the Table below] Start with a low dose, then increase gradually until a large enough dose has been given to provide an adequate trial. The doses have to be applied for a significant period of time. Four weeks for young adults, as long as six weeks for persons over 75 years of age.

STEP 5: If there is no improvement, change to an agent in another class. Bupropion (Wellbutrin) is different from all agents with a Serotonin component. It is not associated with weight gain or sexual side effects as the Serotonin and Serotonin/Norepinephrine agents are.

STEP 6: If there is some improvement but not enough (and the dose is high enough for long enough) consider adding Bupropion to the initial agent.

Note: The biggest problem with using Bupropion is inadequate dose. If the patient is negative for seizures, be prepared to titrate gradually to 450mg/d.

Once your patient has responded, don’t be quick to cut the dose. Some patients need the full dose to which they responded for years! If your patient has had previous episodes, severe episodes, suicidality with episodes, significant family history of depression or anxiety, consider maintaining the full dose for three to five years. Each time the patient has a minor setback during the maintenance phase, consider extending the maintenance period.

Dear Providers,

Your PHO Board of Directors and staff would like to give you an update of the activity of the PHO/SWFPA and plans for the year ahead through periodic communications in the Forum.

The mission of our IPA (SWFPA) which is the “physician-side” of the PHO is to be a physician led organization that effectively represents the collective interests of its physician members and to promote the recruitment, engagement and unification of independent and group practitioner members. Its vision is to proactively educate SWFPA members about current industry trends and to provide the necessary guidance and support to enable their continued professional success.

Within the community there has been much discussion regarding the development of an Accountable Care Organization (ACO) in Naples. While we feel that a well-developed and significant ACO is still a few years away, the PHO is dedicated to helping provide all physicians access to an ACO regardless of affiliation. We are currently working on several projects that will assist PHO members that may choose to participate in an ACO in the future.

We are working with a data analytic provider that will assist you as providers in identifying how you compare to your local peers in various measures of quality and cost effectiveness. This is designed as an educational tool with which each PHO provider will be able to access his/her own data.

NCH Healthcare System and HMA have each chosen technology solutions for their respective Health Information Exchanges (HIEs). The role of the PHO will be to educate, foster HIE participation, and hopefully encourage provider migration onto a handful of common practice management platforms that will effectively integrate with these local HIEs and support future ACO information sharing and reporting needs.

As we move through that next couple of years we will strive to keep you informed of changes that will affect your practice and work towards helping your practice position itself for the changing Healthcare environment. The PHO is YOUR organization and we welcome your input as we move forward.

Sincerely,

James V. Talano, MD, MM, FACC
